

ACCESS WAGE SUBSIDIES FOR YOUR BUSINESS

atWork Australia can help you tap into substantial wage subsidies for employing people living with disability, shrinking your hiring costs and opening your door to readily available talent.

Leeanne with her employer Stacey atWork Australia is a leading specialist in disability employment, with more than 350 locations nationwide. We offer a range of free services to employers, big and small, employing people living with disability, injury or health condition.

We get to know your business, then connect you to a range of screened candidates who are ready to go, so you can quickly hire the person you need.

We offer multiple recruitment services, free of charge

Our one-stop-shop offers:

- Professional recruitment advice and job matching
- Pre-screening candidates
- Help with job design for employees living with disability
- Post placement support for new employees to settle into their job
- Ongoing support for as long as needed for employees and employers
- Training information and awareness activities for employers and staff
- Help for employees whose job may be in jeopardy as a result of living with disability

Wage subsidies

As an employer who partners with atWork Australia you may be eligible to receive generous wage subsidies for the candidates you employ.

These wage subsidies are available to help offset the costs of on-the-job training, contribute to wages or any other workforce development activity.

Wage subsidies of up to $6,000 are available to employers. Terms and conditions apply.

We can help you access these subsidies and incentives for hiring people living with disability. With this support, you can also create an accessible and inclusive workplace and give people living with disability the chance to show what they can do.
